4. There must be a means of identifying and controlling personnel who are authorized access to critical areas of the building;
5. All security and maintenance personnel should be instructed to make periodic checks of all rest rooms, stairwells, and other areas of the building to assure that unauthorized personnel are not hiding or surveilling the area;
6. All personnel, especially those at the telephone switchboard should be instructed on what to do if a bomb threat is received, like being trained to respond calmly because a calm response could result in getting additional information;

8. Every establishment must have an efficient plan for searching the building in the event of a bomb threat. No matter from where the threat originates or what type of threat it is, if it requires searching for bomb, the plan must be simple and effective;
